SOLO NEWS

If you're reading this article about November's Mirror-Khanna, and you weren't there, you just don't know what you missed. The Delta Region Mirror-Khanna draws participants from as far away as Houston, Tx. Everyone should try one of these events so they can experience the thrill of heads-up competition, but come with a different mindset. Even though it's intensely competitive, it's just for fun.

We tweaked the format this time, making it feel like an episode of Speed Channel's Pinks. Just to make it more interesting, it was best 2 out of 3. The benefit to this was now we could determine how much of a head start to give the slower competitor to make it close. We started with 14 drivers, and one loss just moved you to another bracket. It came down to a showdown between Eric Trigg from the unbeaten bracket and Joel Moyer from the one-loss bracket. At the finish line Joel crossed first but a late cone called gave Eric the win. Thanks to all that participated and to Mickey Rushing for her hard work as event chair. Next year we hope to have an even better turnout. If you haven't tried it, try a Mirror-Khanna just for fun. You won't regret it.

Technical

As the weather gets colder it is a good time to check out the critical systems on your car. Battery water level, Heater hoses, anti-freeze, air in the spare tire, batteries in the flashlight, is the 1st aid kit still in the trunk? Jack work with all the parts there to change a flat tire. How did those jumper cables get all tangled up? Or can of fix a flat still serviceable. Where did you put that scraper to clear the windows on a cold frosty morning.
